2016 saw the release of Night Moves' sophomore album, «Pennied Days», and today they have followed it up with the digital-only companion EP «Carl Sagan» consisting of the album's opening track - a standout from «Pennied Days» - and four tracks available digitally for the first time. Listen to it in full and watch the Brook Linder-directed (Grimes, Preoccupations, The Lemon Twigs) video for «Carl Sagan».

Formed in 2009 in the Twin Cities, Night Moves is composed at its core of John Pelant and Micky Alfano. Friends since high school, their bond was solidified when Alfano lent Pelant his copy of George Harrison's «All Things Must Pass», a luminous classic of turn-the-page melancholy that echoes through «Pennied Days». Over time, Pelant and Alfano broadened their scope to allow for a wide array of maverick influences, ranging from traditionalist heroes like Leon Russell and The Band to r'n'b originators Curtis Mayfield and Sly Stone to pre-punk experimentalists Suicide.
